

List of Contributors

Orit Badouk-Epstein was born and raised in Israel before immigrating to London in the 1980s. She is a psychotherapist in private practice in North London. She has a particular interest in working with clients with dissociative identity disorder (DID) and with parents. E-mail: orit_badouk@hotmail.com.

Sarah Benamer is a member of CAPP, where she is a tutor and teacher. She works as a relational psychotherapist in private practice, and has a particular interest in trauma and the body. Prior to training as a psychotherapist she was an independent advocate working to support those in crisis within the National Health Service (NHS) psychiatric system and for people with physical disabilities. E-mail: sarahbenamer@aol.com.

Asaf Rolef Ben-Shahar is a relational psychotherapist in private practice, working in St Albans and London. He integrates psychodynamic psychotherapy with body psychotherapy and hypnosis. Asaf is teaching psychotherapy in Europe and Israel. He is particularly interested in non-verbal and somatic aspects of relationships. Correspondence: The Bassett Clinic, Aberfoyle House, Stapley Road, St Albans, Herts AL3 5EP. E-mail: asaf@imt.co.il.

Emerald Davis is vice-chair of the Centre for Attachment-based Psychoanalytic Psychotherapy. Her area of special interest is trauma and dissociation. She is also involved in the work of the Institute of Psychotherapy and Disability, developing access to psychotherapy for people with learning disability. E-mail: ecdavis1@blueyonder.co.uk.

Yvonne Forward has a small private practice working as an attachment-based psychoanalytic psychotherapist. She lives and works in Crouch End, London with her husband and two young sons. E-mail: yvonneforward@tiscali.co.uk.

Andrew Gumley is Senior Lecturer in Clinical Psychology in the Section of Psychological Medicine, University of Glasgow, Programme Director for the West of Scotland Doctorate in Clinical Psychology Training Programme, and Honorary Consultant Clinical Psychologist in ESTEEM, North Glasgow Early Intervention Service. He is a trainer in cognitive therapy for the Glasgow Institute for Psychosocial Interventions, and an External Consultant to the State Hospital at Carstairs Psychosocial Interventions Programme. His research and clinical interests focus on the development and evaluation of psychological models and psychotherapeutic approaches for individuals recovering from psychosis. E-mail: A.Gumley@clinmed.gla.ac.uk.

Ellen P. Lacter, PhD, is a California-licensed Clinical Psychologist and Family Therapist, and a Registered Play Therapist and Supervisor. She is Academic Co-ordinator of the Play Therapy Certificate Program at University of California, San Diego, Division of Extended Studies, and is past president of the California Association for Play Therapy. She became an Art Therapist, Registered, in 1977, and worked in community mental health agencies until 1984. Since then, she has worked in private practice and provides university and continuing education classes in family violence, child psychopathology and therapy, play therapy, and art therapy. She has developed an object relations model for resolution of trauma with abused children, using play, art, and other expressive therapies. Since 1998, she has acquired expertise in the treatment of dissociative disorders and severe trauma, particularly victims of ritual abuse and mind control. She provides professional continuing education and consultation on psychotherapy with severe trauma survivors, and is an activist on their behalf, centred around her website: www.endritualabuse.org. E-mail: ellenlacter@earthlink.net.

Karl D. Lehman, MD, resides and maintains a private practice in Evanston, Illinois. He completed his medical degree at the University of Kansas, his internship and psychiatry residency at the Oregon Health Sciences University, and he is a diplomat of the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology (Psychiatry). The integration of spirituality, psychology, and medicine in the care of psychological trauma has been a special interest for Dr Lehman for more than twenty years. His private practice actively integrates medical psychiatry, spirituality, and various forms of psychotherapy. He and his wife, Charlotte E. T. Lehman, MDiv, have written over 1000 pages of material addressing mental health care/emotional healing issues, which they provide to the public via their website, www.kclehman.com. E-mail: drkarl@kclehman.com.

Angus MacBeth is a doctoral research student with the University of Glasgow, Section of Psychological Medicine. Prior to this he worked in the NHS. His current area of research focuses on the applicability of attachment theory as a framework for understanding help-seeking and adaptation to psychosis, with particular emphasis on early intervention. E-mail: angus.macbeth@gmail.com.

Una McCluskey is a senior research fellow at the University of York and a freelance consultant. Formerly senior lecturer in social work at the University of York for many years, she has written extensively on working with individuals, couples, families, and groups. Una is a registered psychotherapist with UKCP, and also works as an organizational consultant. She regularly presents her work at the American Group Psychotherapy Association and to other organizations in the UK and in Europe. She is the author of Being Met as a Person, and Psychodynamics of Abuse. E-mail: info@unamccluskey.com.

Marge Oderburg is engaged in multi-cultural psychodynamic psychotherapy practice, working in depth and in short and long-term therapy with individuals, couples, and families. Her special area of research interest is in mental health delivery systems service. She studies the relationship between that and its effect and impact on health care received by citizens of the USA, naturalized individuals in this country and other countries, such as Cuba (2007–2008). She is particularly interested in how an individual feels that his/her ethnicity affects their health and stability, their ability to receive care, and the quality of such care. Her special areas of work and interest, psychotherapeutically, are: anxiety, depression, multi-cultural issues as they affect an individual or families, achieving intimacy in close relationships, and gender issues. E-mail: margemac05@ca.rr.com.

John Read, PhD, is an Associate Professor in the Psychology Department of the University of Auckland. He is the co-ordinating editor of Models of Madness: Psychological, Social and Biological Approaches to Schizophrenia (Brunner-Routledge, 2004). Already in its fourth print run, and translated into Swedish, Spanish, Russian, and Chinese, Models of Madness (co-edited with Professors Richard Bentall and Loren Mosher) documents the damage done by the dominance of a simplistic biogenetic paradigm of psychosis and presents the research-based psychosocial alternatives to understanding and assisting people labelled 'schizophrenic'. E-mail: j.read@auckland.ac.nz.

Matthias Schwannauer is a Senior Lecturer in Child and Adolescent Clinical Psychology, Programme MSc in Applied Psychology. He is Consultant Clinical Psychologist in the Early Psychosis Support Service (EPSS) at the Young People's Unit, Royal Edinburgh Hospital. His current clinical and research interests include the relationship between developmental and interpersonal factors in psychological models of severe and enduring disorder groups. He is particularly interested in the psychology of onset and recovery of severe mental health problems with regard to developmental models of psychiatric disorders and the advancement of specific clinical interventions. E-mail: m.schwannauer@ed.ac.uk.

Joseph Schwartz is editor of ATTACHMENT. His books include Cassandra's Daughter: A History of Psychoanalysis in Europe and America. He was a physicist for many years before retraining as a clinician. E-mail: josephschwartz@btinternet.com.

Valerie Sinason is a poet, writer, child psychotherapist, and adult psychoanalyst. She is Director of the Clinic for Dissociative Studies and President of the Institute for Psychotherapy and Disability. Her most recent book was Attachment, Trauma and Multiplicity: Working with Dissociative Identity Disorder (Routledge). E-mail: VSinason@aol.com.

Kathrin Stauffer, PhD, UKCP Registered Body and Integrative Psychotherapist, was born and educated in Switzerland. Originally a research biochemist, she retrained at the Chiron Centre for Body Psychotherapy in London. She works in private practice in Cambridge and London as a body psychotherapist, bio-dynamic massage therapist, and supervisor, and also teaches anatomy and physiology for psychotherapists. E-mail: kathrin@stauffer.co.uk.

Zenith Wallace is in her final year of the four year training as an Attachment-Based Psychoanalytic Psychotherapist with CAPP. She is a Registered Social Worker with The General Social Care Council, a Social Worker Supervisor and currently working within a Child & Adolescent Mental Health Service in South East London. In addition to her extensive experience of working with children and their families she also has an interest in working with couples and women affected by domestic violence and sexual abuse. E-mail: zenithwallace25@hotmail.com.

Kate White is associate editor of ATTACHMENT, a training therapist, supervisor and teacher at the Centre for Attachment-based Psychoanalytic Psychotherapy, (CAPP). Formerly a senior lecturer at South Bank University, London, in the Department of Nursing and Community Health Studies, she has used her extensive experience in adult education to contribute to the innovative psychotherapy curriculum developed at CAPP. In addition to working as an individual psychotherapist, Kate writes about psychotherapy education and runs workshops on the themes of attachment and trauma in clinical practice. Informed by her experience of growing up in South Africa, she has long been interested in the impact of race and culture on theory and on clinical practice. She has edited two books, Unmasking Race, Culture and Attachment in the Psychoanalytic Space; What do we see? What do we think? What do we feel? (Karnac, 2006) and Touch: Attachment and the Body (Karnac, 2004) and co-edited a third with Joseph Schwartz, Sexuality and Attachment in Clinical Practice (Karnac, 2007). Her most recent article, published in the Attachment and Human Development Journal (6:117–130) 2004, is entitled 'Developing a secure-enough base: teaching psychotherapists in training the relationship between attachment theory and clinical work'. E-mail: k-white@dircon.co.uk.