The Couple in the Room, the Couple in Mind: Reflections from an Attachment Perspective

'Coupling is where all human life starts. ...the search for, establishment, maintenance and mourning of couple relationships are central themes of adult existence.' Jeremy Holmes (2001)

Our starting point for this Conference is our belief that insecure attachments in childhood emerge from relational trauma which results in difficulties in empathy and attunement within couple relationships in adulthood.

Many psychotherapists who work with individuals underestimate the significance of acknowledging the person's intimate couple relationship(s) which is vital in supporting the individual to manage and facilitate change.

The aim of this Conference is to focus on the impact of the couple relationship both in individual therapeutic work and couple work and how to support the achievement of earned security, mutuality and capacity for intersubjectivity.

Our keynote guest speaker, Professor Sue Johnson believes that building secure bonds in therapy is only possible if we understand the nature of love and can systematically build emotional responsiveness in therapy. Emotionally-focused couple therapy (EFT) is able to do this. Her presentation will outline how this approach helps clients move from disconnection and emotional starvation into a reparative experience of secure bonding.

Other themes of the Conference:

- Prof. Brett Kahr asks why some spousal relationships fizzle and others explode in horrifically painful ways and will present the concept of 'the intra-marital affair.'
- Dr. Harbrinder Dhillon-Stevens will address ways of facilitating conversations around difference, discrimination and oppression with inter-racial couples.
- Tamsin Cottis, co-founder of Respond, will present long-term clinical work with a woman with learning disabilities in which the transformative power of the couple is explored.
- Tom Higgins will discuss the development of Gay relationships and psychotherapy from a personal perspective.
- Jenny Riddell asks what happens in the attachment of the dyads and triads created inside and outside the consulting room during therapy?

The John Bowlby Memorial Lecture

John Bowlby died in 1990 after a lifetime dedicated to the development of our understanding of the importance of human attachment in all our lives and in the lives of children in particular. In 1993 The Bowlby Centre, launched the John Bowlby Memorial Lecture. Colin Murray Parkes, a longstanding colleague of John Bowlby's, was the first lecturer. Others since have included key contributors to attachment theory such as Mary

Main, Jude Cassidy, Peter Fonagy, Sir Michael Rutter and Giovanni Liotti. Significant figures from neighbouring disciplines include Daniel Stern on infant development and Amanda Jones on parent - infant psychotherapy. Allan Schore, Judith Herman, Bessel van der Kolk, Sandy Bloom and Pat Ogden on the links between trauma, attachment and neuroscience. The lecture has also been given by relational psychoanalysts Stephen Mitchell, Beatrice Beebe, Susie Orbach, Jody Messler Davies, Kimberlyn Leary, Arietta Slade, and by addictions psychiatrist Prof. Edward Khantzian, all whose work is informed by attachment theory. We are delighted to welcome all our speakers to the twenty first John Bowlby Memorial Conference.

The Bowlby Centre

Promoting Attachment and Inclusion

Since 1976 The Bowlby Centre (formerly known as the Centre for Attachment-based Psychoanalytic Psychotherapy (CAPP)) has developed as an organisation committed to the practice of attachment-based psychoanalytic psychotherapy. The Bowlby Centre is a dynamic, rapidly developing organisation which aims both to train attachment-based psychoanalytic psychotherapists and to deliver a psychotherapy service to those who are most marginalised and frequently excluded from long term psychotherapy.

We provide a four year part-time psychotherapy training accredited by the UKCP and operate a psychotherapy referral service for the public including the low cost Blues Project. The Bowlby Centre has a wealth of experience in the fields of attachment and loss and particular expertise in working with trauma and abuse.

As part of our ongoing commitment to anti-discriminatory practice we offer a consultation service to the public and private sectors and are engaged in outreach and special projects. These include working with care leavers, women experiencing violence and abuse, offenders and ex-offenders, people struggling with addiction to drugs, alcohol, eating difficulties or self harm, and with individuals and groups in a wide variety of mental health settings. We run short courses on 'Working with Dissociation in Clinical Practice from an Attachment Perspective', 'Attachment Theory in Clinical Practice' and working with people with learning disabilities. The Bowlby Centre organises conferences including the annual John Bowlby Memorial Lecture and has a series of publications which aim to further thinking and development in the field of attachment.

One of our regular publications is our journal ATTACHMENT: New Directions in Psychotherapy and Relational Psychoanalysis, a professional journal for psychotherapists and counsellors edited by members of The Bowlby Centre and published by Karnac. We welcome contributions from colleagues of all clinical orientations that further attachment-based relational psychotherapy and counselling.

The Bowlby Centre is committed to the following clinical values:

- We believe that mental distress has its origin in failed or inadequate attachment relationships in early life and is best treated in the context of a long-term human relationship.
- Attachment relationships are shaped in a social world that includes poverty, discrimination and social inequality. The effects of the social world are a necessary part of the therapy.
- Psychotherapy should be available to all, and from the attachment perspective, especially those discriminated against or described as 'unsuitable' for therapy.
- Psychotherapy needs to be provided with respect, warmth, openness, a readiness to interact and relate, and free from discrimination of any kind.
- Those who have been silenced about their experiences and survival strategies need to have their reality acknowledged and not pathologised.
- The Bowlby Centre values inclusiveness, access, diversity, authenticity and excellence. All participants in our organization share the responsibility for anti-discriminatory practice in relation to race, ethnicity, gender, sexuality, age, (dis)ability, religion, class, educational and learning style.
